DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The indicated allowability of claims 14-25 are withdrawn in view of the previously discovered reference(s) to Gorsuch (US Patent 6,151,332). Rejections based on the previously cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

3. Claims 14, 15, and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gorsuch (US Patent 6,151,332).

Regarding to claims 14 and 17, Gorsuch discloses an apparatus 100 for real-time transmission of compressed data (fig. 1 col. 4 lines 61-67), comprising a receiving unit 120 (fig. 1 col. 3 lines 62-64) for receiving both useful data and filling data (fig. 3 col. 5 lines 56-62; noted the useful data is located in field 312 and the filling data is located in field 311 and 313) which arrive as a data stream with a constant data rate via a circuit-switched connection of a first communications network (fig. 1 col. 3 lines 31-46; noted ISDN is a circuit switched network having a constant rate transmission); a control unit 422 for removing the filling data contained in the data stream with the constant data rate and for reformatting the useful data contained in the data stream into a format compatible with a data stream with a variable data rate via a packet-oriented connection 428 by embedding the useful data into the transmission format of the packet oriented connection (fig. 4 col. 6 lines 32-40; noted the filling data in field 311 and 313 is removed, and only the useful data in field 312 is transmitted), wherein said variable data rate corresponds to a variable transmission bandwidth available for the connection (col. 6 lines 62-67 and col. 7 lines 1-2; noted the radio channels corresponds to a transmission bandwidth supporting a variable rate that's allocated to user only upon demand); and a sending unit 140 (fig. 1 col. 4 lines 10-14) for sending the reformatted useful data as a data stream with a variable data rate via a packet-oriented connection of a second communications network (fig. 1 col. 4 lines 14-18; noted the base station is a packet-oriented connection of a mobile communications network).

Regarding to claim 15, Gorsuch discloses the apparatus is connected between a line-connected communications network and a mobile communications network (fig. 1 col. 3 lines 8-15).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Art Unit: 2616

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 16 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gorsuch.

Regarding to claims 16 and 18, Gorsuch discloses all the limitations with respect to claims 14 and 17, except for the useful data is compressed video data. However, to arrange for the transmission of compressed data with useful data as compressed video data would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art since such transmission of video data is well known in the art.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed April 7, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Regarding to applicant's argument of page 6, Gorsuch fails to teach for "a data stream with a variable rate" since the radio channel 160 in Gorsuch is set at a constant rate. In response, the examiner would like to direct applicant's attention to col. 4 lines 31-42. Herein, Gorsuch discloses for supporting higher speed data transmission the radio channels 160 must be greater in number or have a greater bandwidth.

Though the radio channels 160 may be set at a constant rate of 8 kbps to support an ISDN rate of 56 kbps or 128 kbps (col. 6 lines 65-67), the radio channels 160 still have the capabilities to be vary in bandwidth to support higher ISDN rate (col. 4 lines 31-42).

Thus, Gorscuh indeed teach of reformatting the useful data to a variable rate as claimed.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 19-25 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
